

Amir Afargan Biography

Amir Afargan has been a part of the world's electronic music for over a decade, yet this is the name behind the most beautiful and uplifting melodies the progressive house scene is yet to discover.

For many, Amir is known as an Israeli trance musician named A-Force, who had released numerous #1 hits on the legendary Armada Music label since 2002 (think "Atomic Outbreak", "Behind The Silence", or "Continental Chaos", which scored a rare "ten out of ten" by DJ Mag). Throughout the years, Amir has been supported by the likes of Armin Van Buuren, Tiesto, Gareth Emery, Blank & Jones, ATB, Cosmic Gate and Ferry Corsten. His remix of Dana International's "Hakol Ze Letova" was picked among over 1,500 competing tracks for the official soundtrack of the Hollywood's "You Don't Mess with the Zohan" movie.

Today Amir has something brand new to show you, something he believes is the future of not just a niche electronic music genre, but the future of mainstream music as the whole world knows it. The very recent example of the new material is the hypnotizing remix of Beyonce's "End Of Time," rapturously welcomed by the fans of Avicii, Swedish House Mafia, or Fedde Le Grand, to name a few.

With the new big remixes and original releases coming out this spring, the launch of the new website, DJ gigs across Europe, and exciting collaborations, Amir Afargan is the name to watch for carefully in 2012.
